Anastasia K. Jones and Prescott L. Prince Join VSB

Anastasia K. Jones and Prescott L. Prince have joined the Virginia State Bar as assistant bar counsel.

Jones and Prince both will prosecute professional disciplinary cases in the fifth district, which covers parts of Fairfax and Prince William.

Beginning in 2009, Jones was a partner with Blandford & Jones PC in Powhatan where her practice included adult and juvenile criminal defense, family law, Guardian Ad Litem matters, civil litigation, probate matters, estate planning, and small business documentation and transactions.

Jones was previously in solo practice, and was an associate with Strother Law Offices PLC, and Cook & Associates LLC, both in Richmond. Her practice focused primarily on family law and civil litigation.

Jones was admitted to the bar in California in 2000 where she practiced until 2006 with the law firm of Sheppard, Mullin, Richter & Hamilton LLP. She handled state and federal litigation, bankruptcy proceedings, and various transactional matters. While in California she gained extensive experience in researching and writing appellate briefs.

A native of Southern California, Jones received her bachelor's degree from the University of California, Irvine, where she majored in social science and was Phi Beta Kappa. She earned her law degree from University of California, Berkeley.

Prince was active in the military law and general practice sections during the last twenty years. He was in the Navy JAG Corps for four years after graduating from Washington and Lee University Law School, and then spent most of the next twenty years in private practice at Clarke & Prince, ending up as managing partner.

He was recalled to active duty in 2007 and sent to Iraq to serve as a Rule of Law officer. In 2008 he became deputy chief defense counsel — Navy, where he was responsible for the supervision of all sailors assigned to the office of the chief defense counsel. He also served as detailed military counsel and team leader for the defense team representing Khalid Sheikh Mohammad.

Prince's bachelor's degree in psychology is from Davidson College. He has a master's in clinical psychology from Radford University and his J.D. degree is from Washington and Lee University Law School.
