

University of Richmond Law Student Awarded Tillman Military Scholarship

Greg Collins, a second-year student at the University of Richmond School of Law and active-duty Marine Corps captain, has been awarded a prestigious Tillman Military Scholarship.

Out of 1,800 applications, the Wilmington, DE, native was selected as one of sixty recipients—a 3 percent acceptance rate—and is the first recipient for the university since the program began in 2009. Tillman Scholars are chosen based on career success and ambitions, leadership potential, desire to serve others, and demonstration of service to the community. Military veterans and active-duty members of any military branch, as well as spouses, are eligible for the program which provides scholarships based on financial need. The average award is $11,000 per scholar per year.

Collins, who received his B.S. in ocean engineering from the United States Naval Academy and is on leave from the Marines to attend law school, had been stationed in Iraq, California, Japan, Thailand, South Korea, the Philippines, and Quantico before coming to Richmond. He hopes to forge a relationship between the university and the Hunter Holmes McGuire Veterans Administration Medical Center.

Pat Tillman, for whom the Tillman Scholarship program is named, turned down a multi-million dollar professional football contract to serve in the elite Army Rangers in Afghanistan. He was killed-in-action in 2004. Today, The Pat Tillman Foundation aims to build a diverse community of leaders committed to service to others through its scholars program.

From Marshall To Moussaoui:

Federal Justice in the Eastern District of Virginia

By Well-Known Author John O. Peters

From Marshall to Moussaoui: Federal Justice in the Eastern District of Virginia artfully traces the precedential decisions of a court that has made a rich contribution to the history of our Constitution. John Peters' book is well-researched, informative and quite entertaining.

Antonin Scalia, Associate Justice United States Supreme Court

John O. Peters' work entitled From Marshall to Moussaoui: Federal Justice in the Eastern District of Virginia is quite an accomplishment. Through the historical lens the reader quickly is transported to the times of the anecdotes that are sprinkled liberally across the pages. The U.S. District Court comes alive as Peters focuses the reader's attention on the brilliance – and the human foibles – of the jurists who have presided over cases that range from treason and trespass, to liquor and libel, and from civil war to civil rights. Collectively, the judges, lawyers and litigants personify the history of this important court of justice. It is also a rich and robust reflection of the history of America.

Gerald L. Baliles, Governor of Virginia (1986-90)
