LEGAL ETHICS OPINION 728

POST-NUPTIAL CONTRACTS –
MULTIPLE REPRESENTATION.

It is not improper for an attorney to represent both husband and wife in the preparation and execution of reciprocal wills which contain a contract clause preventing the survivor from changing beneficiaries following the death of the first to die if it is obvious that the attorney can adequately represent the interests of the husband and wife and if both the husband and wife consent to the representation after full disclosure of the possible effect of such representation on the exercise of the attorney's independent professional judgment on behalf of each of said clients.
