

1 LEGAL ETHICS OPINION 1864 MAY A CRIMINAL DEFENSE LAWYER AGREE
2 THAT HE WILL NOT GIVE CERTAIN DISCOVERY
3 MATERIALS TO HIS CLIENT DURING THE COURSE
4 OF THE REPRESENTATION, AND THAT HE WILL
5 REMOVE CERTAIN MATERIALS FROM HIS FILE
6 PRIOR TO THE END OF THE REPRESENTATION?
7

8 In this hypothetical, a prosecutor wishes to provide broad discovery to defense lawyers in 9 the course of criminal prosecutions, in order to make defendants aware of the weight of the 10 evidence against them and to encourage reasonable resolutions of criminal cases in light of that 11 evidence. Because of the nature of much of this evidence, including the identities and locations
12 of cooperating witnesses and graphic photographs of the victims, the prosecutor does not want to 13 permit defendants to physically possess this evidence. Accordingly, the prosecutor asks all 14 defense lawyers who receive any discovery that is not legally required to sign an agreement that 15 provides:

16 I, _____, counsel for the above referenced defendant, (or authorized agent of 17 counsel for such defendant) hereby acknowledge receipt of [the discovery materials].
18 Although the Commonwealth is required to allow me to inspect exculpatory evidence, I
19 agree that, with the exception of those materials described in Rule 3A:11(b)(1), the 20 Commonwealth is not required to provide me with copies of any evidentiary materials or 21 to allow me to copy any evidentiary materials.

22 In consideration of the Commonwealth providing me with copies of these evidentiary
23 materials other than those described in Rule 3A:11(b)(1), I agree that, until this case is 24 concluded, I will not allow these materials or any copy thereof to leave my possession or 25 control. While I have the right to share and show the contents of these materials to my 26 client, I agree to not give these materials, except the materials described in Rule
27 3A:11(b)(1), to my client until this case is concluded.

28 I understand that, although I may review my client's criminal and DMV records in the 29 Commonwealth's Attorney's office, the Commonwealth Attorney is prohibited from 30 giving me these records absent a specific court order.

31 I understand that [certain discovery materials] are particularly sensitive and that the 32 Commonwealth is loaning me copies thereof for my convenience. In consideration of the 33 Commonwealth providing me with such copies rather than merely allowing me to inspect
34 them, I agree to return them to the Commonwealth's Attorney prior to the conclusion of 35 my representation of the defendant.

37 QUESTION PRESENTED
38

39 Does a criminal defense lawyer violate Rule 1.4 and/or Rule 1.16(e) by agreeing that, to the 40 extent the prosecutor provides any discovery in excess of that required by law, the defense
41 lawyer will share the information with his client but will not give any discovery materials or
42 copies to the client during the representation, and will return any copies of "sensitive" discovery
43 materials to the Commonwealth's Attorney so that his client is not entitled to receive them upon 44 termination of the representation?
45

46 APPLICABLE RULES AND OPINIONS

47

48 The applicable Rules of Professional Conduct are Rule 1.4¹ and Rule 1.16(e)², and relevant legal 49 ethics opinions are 1789 and 1854.

50

51 ANALYSIS

52

53 A lawyer's obligation to share information with his client during the course of the 54 representation is governed by Rule 1.4, which requires the lawyer to inform the client of "facts
55 pertinent to the matter" and to comply with "reasonable requests for information." Unlike Rule
56 1.16(e), which applies upon termination of the representation, Rule 1.4 does not specify the 57 means by which these obligations must be carried out. LEO 1789, addressing the issue of a client
58 who has asked for a copy of his medical records that the lawyer obtained in the course of the 59 representation, explains that any request for a copy of a particular document in the file "must be 60 considered" in light of the duty to promptly comply with reasonable requests for information, but 61 does not conclude that a lawyer must provide a document because the client has requested it.
62

63 In this case, the discovery agreement specifically authorizes the defense lawyer to show
64 his client the contents of the discovery materials and to discuss those contents with the client; the 65 defense lawyer is only barred from providing the document or a copy to the client. Under the

¹ Rule 1.4 Communication

(a) A lawyer shall keep a client reasonably informed about the status of a matter and promptly comply with reasonable requests for information.

(b) A lawyer shall explain a matter to the extent reasonably necessary to permit the client to make informed decisions regarding the representation.

(c) A lawyer shall inform the client of facts pertinent to the matter and of communications from another party that may significantly affect settlement or resolution of the matter.

² Rule 1.16 Declining or Terminating Representation

(e) All original, client-furnished documents and any originals of legal instruments or official documents which are in the lawyer's possession (wills, corporate minutes, etc.) are the property of the client and, therefore, upon termination of the representation, those items shall be returned within a reasonable time to the client or the client's new counsel upon request, whether or not the client has paid the fees and costs owed the lawyer. If the lawyer wants to keep a copy of such original documents, the lawyer must incur the cost of duplication. Also upon termination, the client, upon request, must also be provided within a reasonable time copies of the following documents from the lawyer's file, whether or not the client has paid the fees and costs owed the lawyer: lawyer/client and lawyer/third-party communications; the lawyer's copies of client-furnished documents (unless the originals have been returned to the client pursuant to this paragraph); transcripts, pleadings and discovery responses; working and final drafts of legal instruments, official documents, investigative reports, legal memoranda, and other attorney work product documents prepared or collected for the client in the course of the representation; research materials; and bills previously submitted to the client. Although the lawyer may bill and seek to collect from the client the costs associated with making a copy of these materials, the lawyer may not use the client's refusal to pay for such materials as a basis to refuse the client's request. The lawyer, however, is not required under this Rule to provide the client copies of billing records and documents intended only for internal use, such as memoranda prepared by the lawyer discussing conflicts of interest, staffing considerations, or difficulties arising from the lawyer-client relationship. The lawyer has met his or her obligation under this paragraph by furnishing these items one time at client request upon termination; provision of multiple copies is not required. The lawyer has not met his or her obligation under this paragraph by the mere provision of copies of documents on an item-by-item basis during the course of the representation.

66 circumstances, the lawyer does not violate Rule 1.4 by entering into and complying with this
67 discovery agreement. The lawyer can explain all pertinent facts to his client and comply with a
68 reasonable request for information by meeting with the client to view and discuss the discovery
69 materials; accordingly, Rule 1.4 does not require that the lawyer provide copies of any of these 70 materials, even upon request of the client.

71
72 This proposed discovery agreement differs from the arrangement prohibited by LEO
73 1854 because in this case, the lawyer is allowed and encouraged to share the information from 74 the discovery materials with his client. If the agreement in any way limited the lawyer's ability to 75 give information to his client, then the analysis of LEO 1854 would apply to prohibit the 76 Commonwealth's Attorney from seeking such an agreement.

77
78 At the termination of the representation, Rule 1.16(e) requires that the lawyer provide the 79 contents of his file to the client upon the client's request. Accordingly, unless the disclosure of 80 certain materials is prohibited by law, any materials that are in the lawyer's file at the conclusion
81 of the representation must be provided at that time. Except for the last paragraph of the discovery
82 agreement, referring to "certain sensitive materials," the agreement does not raise any concern as 83 to the defense lawyer's compliance with Rule 1.16(e), as it explicitly provides that the lawyer
84 will not make the discovery materials a part of his file and furnish those materials to his client
85 upon termination of the representation.

86
87 However, the provision that requires the lawyer to return "certain sensitive materials" to 88 the Commonwealth so that those materials are not in the lawyer's possession at the termination
89 of the representation may lead to problems if the lawyer's representation is terminated
90 unexpectedly and the lawyer does not have time to return the materials before the client is 91 entitled to receive a copy of his file. In order to avoid a potential violation of Rule 1.16(e) after 92 the lawyer's termination or for another reason, the defense lawyer should seek informed consent
93 from his client before agreeing to this restriction on the client's access to information upon
94 termination of the representation. Without client consent, the lawyer should not accept "sensitive 95 materials" that would be subject to the last paragraph of the discovery agreement.
